Portfolio managers comments

"Higher for longer": Rising interest rates have been the defining theme of this economic start to the fall, as inflation and fiscal concerns have fueled investor jitters. On the one hand, rising energy prices (oil up 35%–40% from July lows), combined with resilient economic activity—both in terms of growth and employment—led several major central banks to adopt a more restrictive monetary policy to contain this resurgence of inflation (the Fed, ECB, BoJ, and RBA all raised key interest rates by 25 basis points). On the other hand, political and fiscal risks have put additional pressure on government bonds, particularly in Europe and among countries with the most expensive public spending policies. As a result, long-term sovereign yields in several countries reached levels not seen in over fifteen years: the 10-year U.S. Treasury yield stood at 5.28% (+53 basis points over the month), the 10-year French OAT at 4.86% (+68 basis points), and the 10-year German Bund at 3.59% (+27 basis points).

Nevertheless, equity markets showed remarkable resilience (MSCI World: -1.1%, S&P: -0.3%, Stoxx Europe 600: -2.4%). Strong first-half earnings reports and expected earnings growth for 2026 and 2027 (33% and 15% in the U.S., 20% and 9% in Europe, respectively) have so far helped absorb this rate shock.

September also marked a turning point for the AI theme with the launch of Muse, Meta's new personal agent, which illustrates the gradual shift from conversational assistants toward agents capable of performing tasks and becoming a new interface with consumers. After several weeks of underperformance, companies exposed to this theme thus staged a notable recovery, taking into account valuation levels, the interest rate environment, and the cybersecurity incidents that punctuated the month.

Against this backdrop, the fund posted a monthly return of -0.89%, compared to -2.11% for its benchmark index.

The main positive contributor to performance this month was ASML (+10%). In addition to the resurgence of the underlying theme, the company saw its new generation of "High-NA EUV" lithography systems validated by its client TSMC following a period of skepticism regarding its cost. Furthermore, rising demand for production capacity and an improved outlook for the fourth quarter have reignited investor interest.

Strabag (+11%) benefited from raising its medium-term ambitions, with a target of €30 billion in revenue and an EBIT margin of at least 6% by 2030, driven in particular by the expected acceleration of infrastructure investments in Germany

Ariston (+11%) benefited from new signs of recovery in the European heat pump market, particularly in Germany, where sales rose 40% in the first half of the year and where applications for subsidies surged during the summer. The integration of Riello is proceeding as expected, with a target of €25 million in EBITDA synergies by 2030.

Compagnie de Saint-Gobain (-12%) was hurt by the interest rate environment, the return of inflationary pressures, and the continued deterioration of the residential market. The unusual absence of hurricanes in the Atlantic also weighed on the outlook for the U.S. roofing market.

Grenergy (-15%) reported second-quarter results broadly in line with expectations (EBITDA +47% / Net income +112%). A higher-than-expected asset turnover and the continued monetization of its portfolio are enabling the group to finance the acceleration of its investments in energy storage but are automatically reducing the contribution of divested assets to short-term operating results. Large-scale energy storage remains a key driver for the stock, in a market marked by accelerating demand for batteries.

Finally, Allianz (-7.6%) was weighed down by emerging concerns regarding the disruption of the insurance sector by artificial intelligence agents, which could facilitate product comparison and multi- -distribution and, ultimately, intensify price pressures. These concerns arise as the pricing cycle is already beginning to show signs of normalization after several particularly favorable years.

Among the month's key moves, we increased our positions in Prysmian, Enel, Siemens, Merlin Properties, Schneider Electric, Belimo, Halma, SSE, and Ariston. Conversely, we reduced our holdings in Compagnie de Saint-Gobain, ASML, Vaisala, GTT, IMI, NIBE, Seche Environnement, Inwido, and Strabag.

In the short term, the geopolitical environment and its impact on oil prices will continue to fuel market volatility. However, the latest leading indicators (notably the PMI) point to an acceleration in economic activity on both sides of the Atlantic. Third-quarter earnings reports and earnings growth forecasts should therefore remain positive. In this context, earnings momentum will remain a key driver for equity markets despite rising interest rates and costs. Inflation, however, remains the primary concern and could persistently exceed central banks' targets, even in the event of geopolitical de-escalation and a decline in energy prices. Such a development, while easing price pressures in the short term, would also support purchasing power, investment, and, more broadly, already robust demand, thereby sustaining a risk of overheating that could force central banks to tighten monetary policy further. "Higher for longer"...

During 2025, DNCA Finance updated its methodology for calculating alignment with the European taxonomy. This change in methodology means that historical data are not directly comparable with current data. To ensure the consistency and reliability of the information provided, DNCA Finance therefore does not publish historical data for the last three years. A historical record will be gradually reconstructed from the 2026 financial year onwards, based on the new methodology.

+The coverage rate measures the proportion of issuers (equities and corporate bonds) taken into account in the calculation of the extra-financial indicators. This measure is calculated as a % of the net assets adjusted for cash, money market instruments, derivatives and any vehicle outside the scope of "listed equities and corporate bonds".

Glossary

Beta. Measures the average extent to which a fund moves relative to the broader market. The beta of a market is 1. A fund with a beta of more than 1 moves on average to a greater extent than the market. A fund with a beta of less than 1 moves on average to a lesser extent. If beta is a minus number, it is likely that the stock and the market move in opposite directions.
Cash flow. Cash flow is the amount of cash generated by a company and is taken to be an indication of its ability to pay a dividend and of its future financing requirements. When a company produces more cash than it uses, it has a positive cash flow; the opposite is a negative cash flow. At the most fundamental level, a company's ability to create value for shareholders is determined by its ability to generate positive cash flows, or more specifically, maximize long-term free cash flow.
Correlation coefficient. The correlation coefficient is a measure of correlation. It is used to determine the relationship between two assets over a given period. A positive coefficient means that the two assets move in the same direction. Conversely, a negative coefficient means that the assets move in the opposite direction. The correlation or decorrelation can be more or less strong and varies between -1 and 1.
Dividend yield. Annual dividends per share / Price per share
EV (Enterprise Value). Market value of common stock + market value of preferred equity + market value of debt + minority interest - cash and investments.
ND/EBITDA (Net Debt / EBITDA). A measurement of leverage, calculated as a company's interest-bearing liabilities minus cash or cash equivalents, divided by its EBITDA. The net debt to EBITDA ratio is a debt ratio that shows how many years it would take for a company to pay back its debt if net debt and EBITDA are held constant.
P/B. The Price to Book Ratio is the ratio of the market value of equity (market capitalisation) to its book value. It is used to compare the market valuation of a company with its book value.
P/CF (Share price/Cash Flow per Share). The price-to-cash-flow ratio is an indicator of a stock's valuation.
P/CF (Price/Cash Flow). The price-to-cash-flow ratio is an indicator of a stock's valuation.
PER (Price Earnings Ratio). A company's share price divided by the amount of profits it makes for each share in a 12-month period. PE ratios are normally calculated on the base of all the profit made in the period, whether or not the profit is paid out to shareholders in that period.
ROE (Return On Equity). The amount of net income returned as a percentage of shareholders equity. Return on equity measures a corporation's profitability by revealing how much profit a company generates with the money shareholders have invested.
Sharpe ratio. The Sharpe ratio measures the excess return over the risk-free money rate of an asset portfolio divided by the standard deviation of that return. It is therefore a measure of the marginal return per unit of risk. It is used to measure the performance of managers with different risk policies.
Tracking error. Tracking Error is a measure of how closely an investment portfolio follows the index against which it is benchmarked. It is the difference in the return earned by a portfolio and the return earned by the benchmark against which the portfolio is constructed. For example, if a bond portfolio earns a return of 5.15% during a period when the portfolio's benchmark (say, for example, the Lehman Brothers Index) produces a return of 5.06%, the tracking error is .09%, or 9 basis points.
Volatility. A statistical measure of the fluctuations of a security's price. It can also be used to describe fluctuations in a particular market. High volatility is an indication of higher risk.
